GAO Issues Report on Identity Theft Services Limitations
The Government Accountability Office (GAO) has issued a new report on data breaches entitled, “Range of Consumer Risks Highlights Limitations of Identity Theft Services.” GAO was asked to review issues related to consumers’ options to address risks of harm from data breaches. The report examines information and expert views on the effectiveness of consumer options to address data breach risks. Through this report, GAO recommends a previous finding that legislation requiring federal agencies that experience data breaches offer certain levels of identity theft insurance coverage to affected individuals are likely unnecessary. GAO therefore recommends Congress consider permitting agencies to determine the appropriate coverage level for such insurance. GAO also recommended that the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) update its guidance for agency responses to data breaches after analyzing the effectiveness of identity theft services relative to lower-cost alternatives. The full report is available here.
