AAMVA Participates at eID Conference

Iowa's Motor Vehicle Division director Mark Lowe, Delaware's Division of Motor Vehicles director Scott Vien, and AAMVA's Director of Identity Management Geoff Slagle participated in a panel on the evolution of the driver license at the recently held eID Conference in Washington DC. Joining them was the Chair of the ISO Task Force charged with investigating and developing standardization on the subject, United Laboratories' Arjan Geluk. Over 200 government delegates together with the brightest minds in the industry, came together from all around the world to discuss the foundation and evolution of a global eID infrastructure, based on citizen ID documents. There was keen interest in the mobile driver license (mDL) work being done in the AAMVA community on the part of the attendees. AAMVA will be hosting its first face-to-face meeting in November specifically around the topic of mDL – for those wanting further information please contact Geoff Slagle gslagle@aamva.org.

Troy Dillard to Retire from Nevada DMV

Nevada Governor Brian Sandoval has announced the retirement of Troy Dillard, Director of the Department of Motor Vehicles (DMV) in Nevada, effective October 23rd. Having started in 1988, Troy will leave public service after almost 30 years with the state. Sandoval will name a replacement at a later date. Troy Dillard began his career in public service in 1988. He worked at the Department of Public Safety until 2004 when he transitioned to the Department of Motor Vehicles as the Chief of the Compliance Enforcement Division. In 2011 he was appointed as the DMV Deputy Director and in 2012, Governor Sandoval tapped him as the Director of the Department.

Washington Motorcycle Safety Program Public Safety Videos

The Washington Motorcycle Safety Program is proud to announce the release of a powerful new public safety video, Training is Everything. This seven minute video, presents a compelling case for all riders to sign up for initial and continued motorcycle training. The video features motorcycle riders, an elite Army Apache helicopter pilot, champion hydroplane racer Chip Hanauer, rugby players from Seattle Slam, and motorcycle safety specialists. Within it they discuss the importance of training and how the physical and mental skills required to fly combat helicopters, race hydroplanes, and even compete in rugby compare to those required to ride motorcycles. Pilots, race drivers, and athletes train constantly to be on their game. By doing the same, riders—whether novices or experienced, year-round riders or summer cruisers—can both ride more safely and get more out of themselves and their bikes. Accompanying the full-length version of the video are two 30-second public service announcements to use as further tools to speak to riders about the main messages of the film—that a large percentage of rider fatalities are, in fact, caused by the riders themselves. By training for the physical and mental art that is motorcycling, riders can get the most from their ride, get home safely, and then go ride more. You can find the full length video and 2 PSA's on You Tube here.

National Teen Driver Safety Week

The Center for Injury Research and Prevention (CIRP) Teen Driver Safety Research Team at The Children's Hospital of Philadelphia (CHOP) invites you to join us in this evidence-based call to action: "Avoid the Regret, Avoid Impaired Driving"

Research shows that teens understand they are vulnerable and are well aware of many risks. So, focusing on avoiding regret can be a powerful message for teens. One of the major factors that increases the risk of a crash is impaired driving, which not only includes alcohol or drug use, but also distraction, fatigue, and strong emotions. During NTDSW, help teens take action to Avoid the Regret, Avoid Impaired Driving – as a driver, as a passenger, and as a friend.
